F: Hi, Bob. I want you to help me with my homework.

M: Hi, Akane. Of course.

F: Thank you. I'm writing a report.

M: What is it about?

F: It's about things that foreign people are surprised at in Japan.

M: That sounds interesting! Oh..., it's difficult to choose only one. Well..., I was especially surprised at vending machines.

F: Vending machines?

M: Yes. My friend Mike was also surprised at them.

F: Really? Do you have the same reason?

M: No, we have different reasons. I was surprised because they are found on almost every corner in Japan. When I climbed the highest mountain, I was able to buy drinks from the vending machines even near the top!

F: Wow! I didn't know that! So, what's his reason?

M: He said that there are many kinds of vending machines he cannot find in his country. He showed me a picture of banana vending machines.

F: What? I have never heard of such a strange machine.

M: Hi, Cathy. How was your weekend?

F: Hi, Peter. I had a great time with my grandparents.

M: That sounds nice! Did you do anything special?

F: Yes! We visited our grandparents' house and held a birthday party for my grandmother.

M: That's great! Was it a big party?

F: No, it wasn't, but it was a long party. It started around noon and finished at five.

M: It sounds like a wonderful time. But, you look so tired.

F: Yes, I am. We came back late last night.

M: What time did you arrive home?

F: It was 11:30 p.m. The traffic was really terrible.

M: That's too bad.

F: It usually takes three hours by car, but it took three more hours last night.

M: Wow..., that was a long time.

(Pause: 1.5 sec.)

F: Dad, I'm home!

M: Hi, Kate. What do you have in your hand?

F: This paper? I got it in front of the station. It's about a new restaurant.

M: Let's see.... I know this restaurant. I had lunch there last week.

F: Really? How was it?

M: Well..., it was OK.

F: Just OK? Was the food bad?

M: I had curry and rice, but it was too hot. I should try another dish next time.

F: I like hot food! How about eating dinner there tonight?

M: Oh, I've already cooked dinner. How about tomorrow?

F: Oh no! Look at this. The restaurant is closed every Tuesday.
M: I see. How about the next day?
F: Well... I have a piano lesson on that day.
M: What time will you come back home after the lesson?
F: It will be about 6 p.m.
M: All right. Let's go to the restaurant after you come back.

M: Christine, can I talk to you now?
F: Yes, of course, John.
M: I interviewed the students in my English classes. My question was, "Why are you studying English?"
F: Wow, I want to know their reasons. We have taught English as ALTs at this high school for a year, but I have never thought about this.
M: Can you guess the most popular reason? I want you to guess before I show you this paper.
F: Is it to enter university? In Japan many students take English tests to enter universities.
M: That's close. That's the second reason.
F: Hmm. Is it to travel to other countries?
M: That's the third reason. That's about 13% of the students.
F: It's difficult to guess the first reason. Please show me the answer.
M: OK, here you are. 30.2% of them are studying English to get a good job.
F: Hmm, the second reason is 29.5%. These two numbers are close. And, there are other reasons, too.
M: Yes. Some students study English for communication. Others study for fun: to understand movies and songs in English. That's helpful to know.

F: In my opinion, learning a foreign language will change a person's life.

M: I agree with you. It gives me great joy when I am able to communicate with people of other languages.

M: Hello, welcome to Kids Radio Program. This is Allen Brown. Today we are going to think about sports. People of all ages enjoy sports. Some sports like running and skiing are done by one person. Others, for example tennis, are played by two or more people. And, there are team sports like baseball and soccer. Of course, sports is good for your health. But some people don't play sports only for fun or for health. They set goals and try hard to reach them. I think it is especially important for you children to play sports. By taking part in sports, you can improve many things in your life, and these things are used through all your life even when you grow older. First, you learn to keep trying. Of course, sometimes you don't win, but the important thing is to try again. To become better at anything you should keep doing it. Second, playing sports, especially on a team, teaches you teamwork and communication skills. It's hard to build a successful team if the members don't work together. You must learn from each other to make a strong team. These skills will be useful in your future. I have played rugby since I was little. Players all work hard and support each other to move the ball forward, and after the game is over, everyone on the field is one team. All players from both teams respect each other, and the friendship will continue even after they stop playing. I have made many friends through sports. Now I don't give up easily, and I'm healthy, too. So, do you want to play sports? Any sport is OK! Let's try!
